

Mount Albert Takes League Title, Trophy

Beat Willow Beach By One
Run In Lake Simcoe
Softball Finals

Mount Albert defeated Willow Beach on Monday by the close score of 4-3 in one of the best games played this year, and won the championship of the Lake Simcoe Softball League, and are now proud holders of the Cooke Trophy. The fielding and pitching of both teams were nearly perfect. McNeil allowing seven hits, and Willow Beach collecting six hits off Mitchell.

The Mount Albert team scored two runs in the second inning to open the scoring of the game on a walk to Watts, singles by Pegg and Davis and a fly ball to centre field. "Big Boy" Stewart made the score 3-0 in the third inning when he drove a home run into left field.

Willow Beach scored one run in the sixth inning, Bruce Fairbairn singled and scored when C. Fairbairn's hard grounder got away from Ward and rolled to the outfield. The Beach team tied the score in the eighth inning when they collected three safe hits off Mitchell. The first three batters to face "Mitch" in this inning hit safely; Bruce Fairbairn singled, C. Fairbairn doubled, and Powell doubled scoring Bruce Fairbairn and C. Fairbairn, but the Mounties' pitcher struck out Gordon and Cameron and McNeil popped to Robertson to retire the side.

Mount Albert scored the winning run in the ninth inning. Watts walked, Draper struck out, Pegg doubled, scoring Watts.

NEW TEACHER WILL START NEXT MONDAY

An additional teacher, Miss Patricia Johnson, of Bracebridge, a graduate of McMaster University, has been engaged to teach lower and middle school English at the high school, as a result of the large first-year class. Miss Johnson commences her duties next Monday, and in the meantime, Mrs. Harry Westbrook, a teacher before her marriage, is supplying.

Davis struck out, Ward singled and Pegg went to third base, and Mitchell popped to C. Fairbairn to end the inning. The McLeod Bros. of Queensville umpired the game.

At the conclusion of the game, President W. Robertson, after a few remarks, called on Neil Shortreed, treasurer of the Lake Simcoe League, to make the presentation of the Cooke Trophy to the Mount Albert club. It was received by the captain of the team, Harry Draper, who thanked all the officials and teams of the league for the good sportsmanship shown through the whole season.

OVER $1,000 IS RAISED FOR SOCIAL WORK

Use Of Club Funds Explained, Hospital Gift Suggested

Net proceeds of the Lions club carnival in August were $1,060, Treasurer Frank Courtney reported to the club at the first fall meeting on Monday evening. President Alex. Eves was in the chair. W. M. Cockburn acted as "tail-twister," that is, song-leader, fine-collector, etc.

Mr. Courtney submitted a report on the receipts and expenditures of the club's "activity" account for the year. The Era was asked to explain that the Lions club has two accounts. Club dues of $10 a member annually go into the club account, and this money is used to pay international dues, to send delegates to conventions, to pay incidental expenses, or for anything except community and social welfare work.

In addition to their dues, The Era was asked to explain, members pay for their meals at dinner meetings of the club.

All money given by the public or raised for the club's work goes into the activity account, and is used strictly, to the last penny, for community welfare.

Fred Lundy took charge of the "Lions' education" period. "I would urge on the junior members to get on your feet and express yourself when you have an idea that will be helpful to the club," he said.

"It is sometimes felt that money we contribute in international dues could be used to better advantage locally," Mr. Lundy also said. "I used to think so, but I changed my mind when I attended the international convention. International has put back into Canada in organization work double what it has taken out."

"There never will be a dictator in any country where there is an international Lions club," was another statement made by Mr. Lundy.

"It is an education to attend other clubs in the district," said Dr. C. E. VanderVoort. "We have eight clubs in this zone with an average of 40 members each. They are all friends. The more you learn of how other fellows are doing things, the greater your love of Lionsism."

W. H. Eves spoke of the benefits members enjoyed from the good fellowship of the club. Expressing thanks for the club's generosity in offering to send him to the international convention in California, W. L. Bosworth reported that he had not gone because he felt that the money could be better spent locally. He hoped to go some day, he said, when the convention wasn't so far away.

Since the new club year began, four children had been taken to the eye clinic at the hospital, and since been supplied with glasses. Vice-president Jack Luck reported.

In the same time the club had looked after nine tonsil cases, six dental cases and one or two other cases, Dr. J. J. Luck, second vice-president, reported.

"We have a remarkably up-to-date little hospital in Newmarket," said Dr. Cock. "But there are things they lack. Why shouldn't we help them? For instance, we could get an incubator for $35 or $40, or there might be something else that the hospital needs more."

Old Boys Reunion To Be Discussed Friday

Some Councillors Question
Wisdom Of Proposal
For Reunion

The mayor is calling a meeting for Friday evening of the council, and the executives of the Lions club, the Sportsmen's Association and the Veterans, to consider a proposed old boys' reunion in Newmarket next year.

The subject came before the town council on Monday evening when Mayor Dr. S. J. Boyd read a personal letter addressed to Wesley Brooks, Newmarket, suggesting that a proposed 127th battalion reunion to be held here next Aug. 1, be widened into a York Rangers reunion, which would include the 220th battalion.

Dr. Boyd proposed that the military reunion should be part of the proposed old boys' reunion. Reeve Dr. L. W. Dales joined in supporting this proposal.

Councillors Wm. Dixon and Arthur Evans said that no decision had been made about an old boys' reunion.

"We'll decide it now then," said Dr. Boyd, calling for a vote.

Mr. Dixon and Deputy-Reeve Joseph Vale voted against it, and Councillor Arthur Evans declined to vote until he heard more details. The rest of the council voted in favor of the reunion.

"It is an unnecessary expense," said Councillor Wm. Dixon.

"It will be a financial headache to the town," said Deputy-Reeve Joseph Vale.

"The visitors will spend a lot of money here and put money into the pockets of the people," said Mayor Boyd.

"If a majority of the council favor it, I will support it," said

TRANSFERRED

S. R. Stevens, the Bell Telephone manager for northern York county, with residence at Newmarket is to be transferred to Orillia. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens have made many friends in this community during their stay of a year and a half. The new manager will be Harold McLellan of Peterboro.

Mr. Dixon.

"Who will run it?" asked Mr. Evans.

"The council will have a representative on the committee," said Councillor W. W. Osborne.

"We will be glad to have any body run it," put in A. C. West, president of the Newmarket Sportsmen's Association.

"We don't want to run it," said Mayor Boyd. "There are men in this town who can run it. The council will oversee it and see that the money is accounted for."

CROWD ENJOYS GREAT TATTOO OF MUSICIANS

Bands Teach Discipline,
Help Democracy, Says
Bandsman

Thrilling and spectacular well describe the band tattoo at the fair grounds on Wednesday evening.

A heavy mist dampened the evening but did not seriously interfere with the great show, planned by Robert Moore, bandmaster of the Newmarket Citizens' Band.

Brampton Excelsior Band was awarded the cup for the best brass band, and the Queen's York Rangers Bugle Band was awarded the cup for bugle bands.

It is no exaggeration to say that every band made a hit. The R. S. A. Bugle Band, which did not compete, played a particularly brilliant part in the evening's program, giving a demonstration of marching and sounding the advance for the various bands to take their place before the grandstand.

Orillia Klitte Band's marching was splendid. Optimist and York Township Band and the Bolton Citizens' Band were heavily applauded. The Aurora Boys' Band drew special praise from the chairman, C. F. Thiele, Waterloo, president of the Ontario Bandmasters' Association.

Speaking of the formation of the Aurora Boys' Band, Mr. Thiele said that 20 bands of this type had been formed in Ontario in the last year.

"These bands teach concentration and discipline, which is necessary for good citizenship," Mr. Thiele said. "What's ahead of us we do not know. We do require discipline. We like to feel that we are doing our share to help the democracies keep together, so that we may not be confronted with the spectacle that we see in Europe, so that we may have discipline not given to us by a dictator."

As host of the evening the Citizens' Band made a splendid showing but did not compete for the trophy.

A floodlight played on each band as it marched in to take its place for the tattoo. The central ground before the grandstand was illuminated with floodlights and flares. Fireworks were used effectively. As each band came forward, playing a regimental march, the bands already assembled picked up the music and swelled the chorus.

One of the finest touches of the evening was when the veterans, mostly Newmarket men but some from Aurora and district, marched in two companies, divided according to the color of their berets. Col. W. P. Mulock, M. P., taking the salute and complimenting the men on their marching.

The event was well patronized, the grounds being well filled. Winners in the draw were, ton of coal, 955, no name; half-ton, George Thompson, Prospect St.; half-ton, F. Lusted; hamper of groceries, 232, no name.

Car Wrapped Around Pole

A serious accident occurred opposite the Armitage post office on Friday evening after midnight when a car driven by Roy Ever-shorn left the road and struck a telephone pole.

Dr. L. W. Dales, County Constable Ronald Watt and Chief Constable James Sloss of Newmarket were called.

The car was badly damaged. Roy Ever-shorn suffered a scalp injury. Wesley Eves, riding beside him, was uninjured. Ross Eves, another brother, in the back seat was seriously injured, with a fractured skull. Another brother, Douglas, also in the back seat, was not injured.

Ross was taken to York county hospital and has since been taken home, getting along satisfactorily.

The driver told the constables that he must have gone asleep. He is being charged with driving without a permit. The constables stated that there was no evidence of drinking.

Challenger Put Out In Second Meeting

Patterson Trophy Will Spend Winter In Newmarket

Behind the effective pitching of big Alex Webster, the Newmarket Redmen defeated the Midhurst Foresters by 11-3 at the latter's home diamond on Monday evening.

By virtue of their win the Reds are undisputed holders of the Patterson trophy, emblematic of softball supremacy in the York-Simcoe league.

In the first inning Midhurst retired Newmarket in short order and then in their own half chalked up three runs, Russell for Midhurst driving a long fly to the deep right foul line, scoring Schandlu and Miles, who already occupied bases.

The Newmarketers were not to be denied, however, and in their half of the second inning pushed six runs across the plate, Giles, Peters, Trivett, Burkholder, Hilton and Webster doing the scoring. Peters for Newmarket hit a four-bagger in this inning.

From the second inning on the Newmarket team held the home team well in check, allowing only one man to reach first base during the remaining innings. The

VETERANS WILL HOLD YEARLY MEETING

The annual yearly meeting of Newmarket Veterans association will be held Sept. 26 in the R. S. A. hall at 8 p.m. Election of officers for the ensuing year will be held. All veterans are requested to be present and voice their opinions.

Reds kept pounding away at the old pill and added two more runs in the sixth and three in the seventh and last inning.

Midhurst put up a very good game but were only able to nick the veteran Webster for two hits, one being a homer, while the Newmarket team managed to collect 12 scattered hits off the veteran Midhurst pitcher, M. Schandlu.

This game finished the York-Simcoe play-offs, but the Newmarket team will play an all-star team from the Lake Simcoe League as soon as dates can be arranged.

Reds Find Midhurst Good Opposition In First Game

Bill Burkholder, Pinch-Hitting, Does The Necessary

By LORNE MCCORDICK

Although outfit three to two, Newmarket Redmen, A champions of the York-Simcoe softball league, staged a last-inning rally to take the first of the series for the Patterson trophy away from Midhurst, B champions, here Thursday night.

With the score deadlocked at three-all, going into the last of the seventh, Bob Peters and Charlie Cunningham reached base for the locals. Big Bill Burkholder, sent in to pinch-hit for Peewee Hilton, sent a long fly into deep left field which enabled Peters and Cunningham to reach home on the throw-in after the catch and thus gave the game to the Redmen by a 5-3 decision.

Speedy Giles, with the assistance of two wild pitches, scored Newmarket's initial score in the first inning.

Harry Brammer and Joe Tunney each followed up with a run in the third to make it 3-0.

Midhurst replied in the fourth when C. Miles crossed the plate for their first run. The visitors really went to work in the fifth and tied the score 3-3 as L. Chappel and C. Miles each chalked up a run for the Green-

NEW SERIES BEGINS

An exhibition championship series between an all-star team of the Lake Simcoe league, and Newmarket, winners of the York-Simcoe league, will begin here on Friday evening.

Other games, as necessary, will be played, three-out-of-five, as follows: Monday, Sept. 19, at Mount Albert; Wednesday, Sept. 21, at Keswick; Friday, Sept. 23, at Newmarket; Monday, Sept. 26, at Sharon.

Neither team threatened in the sixth and it began to look like extra innings would be necessary until Newmarket's rally in the seventh broke up the game.

Despite the closeness of the game, it must be remembered that the locals had been inactive for a couple of weeks while Midhurst was fresh from the Schomberg series.

Repair Timothy St. Wall For $3,000, Says Engineer

Greek Wall Badly In Need Of Repair, Councillors
Find

An estimate of $3,000 for the repair of the wall on the side of the creek at Timothy St. was given to Mayor Dr. S. J. Boyd by W. B. Redfern, town engineer. Dr. Boyd told the council on Monday evening.

"Drumming up business," was Dr. Boyd's comment.

The creek, once the Holland River, is being used for a dump at this point, one of the councillors stated.

After the council meeting members of the council went down to see the scene of the proposed expenditure.

The wall has been down for some time and council members are afraid that a heavy spring flood might do further damage.

Police Court Does More Than $1,000 Per Month

Clerk's Salary To Be Increased, On Provincial Advice

Police court business has exceeded $1,000 a month, according to a letter which Dr. L. W. Dales read to the town council on Monday evening. The letter was from H. R. Polson, assistant inspector of legal affairs.

The letter recommended that Allan Mills, police court clerk, receive $80 a month during the summer and $45 during the winter instead of $45 and $30 as at present. The council passed the necessary resolution. The clerk's salary is deducted from the court fines.

No Chiselling At School Fairs, Exhibits Rejected

Pupils Must Show Own
Work, Representative
Says

Emphatic rulings against exhibition of anything but the child's own work were handed out this week at the school fairs by W. M. Cockburn, York county agricultural representative.

In several instances Mr. Cockburn rejected entries entirely. In one instance a child said that his own flower seeds did not grow, so he bought some along some of his mother's flowers.

The school fair's purpose is to encourage the children to do for themselves and the children must show nobody's work or produce but their own. Mr. Cockburn insisted repeatedly.

COMPLAINS OF POLICE VISIT

Chief Constable James Sloss and County Constable Watt came to his house on Ontario St. on Tuesday afternoon, of Mossie Iris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson E. McCutcheon, Barrie, to Wyatt Leslie Moorby, Newmarket, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Moorby, Sunderland. Mr. and Mrs. Moorby will reside on Mill-ard Ave., Newmarket.

"There was no party," he said. "I was alone in the house at the time. I had some beer in the house. Constable Sloss passed a remark, how could I do it on $20 a month? I told him it was none of his business."

"The police must apologize, or I will take it to the minister of pensions. I was absolutely within my rights and the veterans back me up. The police received no phone message."

"The police commission will investigate it," promised Reeve Dr. L. W. Dales.

You will be pleasantly surprised at the low cost of Era printing. Era printing is neat.

Wyatt Moorby Wed At Barrie

Collier St. United church, Barrie, was the scene of the wedding on Tuesday afternoon, of Mossie Iris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson E. McCutcheon, Barrie, to Wyatt Leslie Moorby, Newmarket, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Moorby, Sunderland. Mr. and Mrs. Moorby will reside on Mill-ard Ave., Newmarket.

Favors Firm Foreign Policy

Britain should not allow Germany to obtain a foothold in Czechoslovakia by any means, according to P. W. Pearson, ex-warden, speaking to The Era on Tuesday.

Britain is getting herself into a very strong position, Mr. Pearson said, trying to force Czechoslovakia to make concessions to Hitler.

"Anthony Eden was right," said Mr. Pearson. "Firmness is needed in dealing with Hitler." Czechoslovakia's boundaries are determined by natural mountain ranges, and it would be the beginning of the end to give part of Czechoslovakia to Germany, Mr. Pearson said.

The first regular meeting of the Christian church scout troop will take place next Wednesday evening at 7.30 o'clock. All boys interested will be welcome.

Something New, Something Different, Offered Public

Will Sell Meat Wholesale
And Means Of Keeping
It Fresh

Offering an unusual service to the public, a new venture will be launched in Newmarket next week by Norman Dorland, operating under the name, "Arctic Lockers."

Mr. Dorland is opening a refrigeration plant at 17 Timothy St. and will rent to the public lockers in which to keep meats, fruits or other foodstuffs.

In addition Mr. Dorland will conduct a wholesale meat department, selling quarters of meat to locker-holders. A butcher will be employed who will cut the meat up as desired for a small charge.

A visit to the new plant is well worth while. From the vestibule you step into the cooling room, which will be maintained at a temperature of 35 degrees Fahrenheit, and from there into the locker room, maintained at eight to 12 degrees.

The cooling equipment is in the basement, and is operated by an electric motor. Walls, floor and ceiling in the cold-storage rooms are heavily insulated with six inches of cork, faced with concrete.

Era advertising is effective. Era printing costs little.

Fire Chief Neglects His Line And Catches Fish Mighty Fine

Members of the town council were guests of N. L. Mathews, K. C., at his summer home at Thunder Bay over the weekend. They were also guests on a fishing trip of David Logan, Detroit, a friend of Mr. Mathews, during the weekend.

On Monday evening the council passed a verbal resolution of appreciation to Mr. Mathews, and a formal resolution to be sent to Mr. Logan concerning their "plac-torial successes."

The guests of Mr. and Mrs. Mathews included Reeve Dr. L. W. Dales, Deputy-Reeve Joseph Vale, Councillor W. W. Osborne, H. E. Lambert, J. O. Little, R. L. Boag and C. C. Rachar.

Dr. Dales told the council that he landed a four-pound bass, second biggest catch of the trip. Mr. Osborne caught his only fish when he wasn't minding his line,

The Newmarket Era

ANDREW OLDING HEBB,

Editor and Proprietor

142 Main St., Newmarket

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 15TH, 1938

CLASH AND CRASH

Never a Saturday night goes by that our Main St. problem isn't emphasized. It would be interesting to have police keep a record of the number of fenders that are scraped. We have seen two or three collisions within an hour on the street in front of The Era office of a Saturday evening. It is said that the cars must go so slowly that no serious accidents occur, and that we suppose is true. Nevertheless, we can't think that all the inconvenience, delays, and jams are really in the best interests of the town.

That Parking By-Law

The problem is one which should come before the town council again at an early date. The council has made several attempts to deal with the question, but the feeling has been, although we think it mistaken, that Main St. business men are not anxious for any interference. Not long ago The Era made a canvass of one side of Main St. and found that the great majority of the merchants favored tacit enforcement of the half-hour parking by-law and the provision of more parking space close to Main St. The council passed a by-law, but we do not believe that as yet the police have been instructed to enforce it.

That Survey

A considerably longer time ago the town council passed a resolution calling for a survey which would be the basis of new frontage lines for Main St. The council commissioned a surveyor to do the work, but we do not believe that the council has ever had a report on the subject. Here is a problem that cannot be solved overnight, a problem for men of patience and faith in the town's future, men who would lay down a plan now which would give Newmarket a modern "Broadway" in another 25 years. And it is not unlikely that the Newmarket of that time will be a town of twice its present population.

A SHOPPER'S SUGGESTION

"Why don't you campaign for parking on one side of Main St.?" an out-of-town lady asked on Saturday evening. That suggestion has been before the council at various times, but it has not gained favor because it might be unfair to the merchants on one side of the street. The reasonable suggestion has been made that the police should use the half-hour parking by-law to keep the business men's own cars off Main St. and to suggest to others who park an unduly long time that they should use the market square or other nearby parking space. Part of this plan was to provide additional parking space, perhaps at Woodfield Park. The result of such a plan, which Newmarket police would be well able to carry out without offence to anyone, would be to provide more parking opportunities on Main St. for those who had heavy parcels to pick up or who wished to make a few purchases and be gone. The plan would help, not hinder, the shopper.

A NEWMARKET STORY

In a little eight-page booklet J. M. Walton of Aurora tells a story of particular interest to Newmarket people. It is of William Allan, the negro Quaker preacher. At 29 this negro was a southern U. S. slave. By his owner's last will and testament he was freed. Hungry for knowledge, he learned to read and to write and soon to preach. He became associated with Quakers in helping fugitive negroes to escape to Canada. He first preached in Newmarket in the early '90's, Mr. Walton tells, and died in 1898.

Once Told

Apparently he was a preacher of amazing personality and power, starting in the ministry no less than 37 young men, including Rev. Harry Parry, who was the Quaker minister here a few years ago. Yielding once to pleas to tell of his days in slavery, William Allan told a Newmarket audience of floggings, wretchedness and ignorance, and of seeing his mother and sister torn from their family and sold on the auction block. He then asked that he never be requested again to tell that story from his past.

Peradventure

He bequeathed $10 to buy a clock which now hangs in the Boisford St. meeting-house. We add only one other item from Mr. Walton's story, and it is this, that William Allan loved to start his sermons with the word, "peradventure."

IN DEFENCE OF PACIFISTS

The greatest service to peace that Canadians can perform today is to back Great Britain, we read one day last week. At the moment that statement seems to be about true, and yet fundamentally we must disagree with it. With that first statement was another, also seemingly true, that well-meaning pacifists were doing harm to the cause of peace. It is true that war is being averted at the moment apparently by convincing Dictator Hitler that an attack on Czechoslovakia would bring against him tremendous odds, including Britain and the British Commonwealth countries. If it came to a show-down, we would judge that Canadian public opinion would favor armed support of Britain in defence of Czechoslovakia. During the last two weeks we have had Canadian military manoeuvres, of a mighty serious kind, within a few miles of Newmarket, and the newspaper publicity these manoeuvres, and other military activities, have received are a pretty good barometer of changing public opinion.

Some Want War?

Now it doesn't follow that public opinion is right. There are lots of people who wouldn't mind a war, unemployed chaps some of them who would like to feel that they were needed, employed chaps some of them who would like a little more exciting life, business men who would like the false economic stimulus which leaves in its wake millionaires and starving refugees. Then there are all of us who have forgotten so much of the horrors of war that we are almost ready again to hate other races. We can't help it either, for we are slaves to the millions of words of war propaganda that we read and hear.

We Missed Our Chance

Nevertheless, what would another war settle? Is it likely that it would bring us any closer to a successful League of Nations? When we the British Commonwealth countries failed to act as League of Nations members in defence of China at the time of the Manchurian conquest, when we failed to act as League of Nations members in defence of Ethiopia, should we now act, without any League of Nations pronouncement, to protect one of the illegitimate children of the treaty of Versailles? If we do, we haven't chosen a very clear-cut moral issue.

Fight For What?

Had we tried to prevent Japanese aggression in Manchuria, backed by a League of Nations verdict, or had we tried to prevent Italian aggression in Ethiopia, supported by a League of Nations declaration, we as Canadians might have felt that we were interfering in world business. But how can we feel that way about the Sudeten issue? We would not be protecting the Sudeten Germans, but merely the Sudeten minority and the territorial integrity of Czechoslovakia. Surely we would be going out of our way to interfere in such an issue.

Where Stands The Church?

Our Christian teaching seems pretty clear that we should not bear arms, or use violence, to obtain our ends, that to turn the other cheek is the wiser policy in the long run. It is true that our Christian pulpits have been used to promote war, but surely our Christian leaders in Canada will demand a better reason, a clearer case of right against wrong, than the Czechoslovakian issue for a moratorium on the Christian gospel. The pacifists may be unhelpful at the moment, but we can't help thinking that they are still right.

COUNCIL REDUCTION

Barrie is likely to vote on a proposal that the town council be reduced to a mayor, reeve, deputy-reeve and six councillors—that is, the same as the Newmarket council. Barrie is a town twice the size of Newmarket, and that suggests the possibility that Newmarket might get along with perhaps two less councillors. Barrie's hope is that by reducing the number of council seats it will be possible to have contests, instead of acclamations, for the seats. It is said that there would be an incidental saving of $300 for Barrie. Newmarket councillors receive no compensation for their services and so there would be no saving in reducing the Newmarket council. Would a reduction in the number of seats bring about a contested election, or would it just increase the burden of committee work on the councillors?

Acclamations

There is nothing the matter with acclamations, of course, except that they may indicate a lack of interest in public affairs, and may permit less competent men to be elected. Barrie might lose in election costs the $300 saved in salaries.

THOUSAND AN HOUR

A thousand cars used Yonge St. highway in a single hour on the Sunday evening before Labor day, according to a provincial department of highways count.

ENCOURAGEMENT

Increased attendance at the C. N. E. encourages one to think, not only that the 1937 polio epidemic has died out but also that business conditions are better and that more people have money in their purses. We also note that the first payment of taxes in the neighboring village of Stouffville, due Aug. 31, amounted to $14,000, the best in years.

WHY EDITORS ARE CANNY

The editor of the Tweed News is being blamed for the opinions expressed in a published letter written by a member of the village council. A newspaper cannot be held accountable for the opinions expressed by others in its columns unless those opinions amount to libel. After all, newspapers publish the letters of those who disagree with them as well as the letters of those who agree with them. If the letter is defamatory, however, the newspaper is just as liable as the man who wrote the letter, and it is usually the newspaper that takes the rap.

ARMISTICE SERVICE

The most elaborate Armistice service in the county is usually that held at Richmond Hill, to which this year Hon. Albert Matthews, lieutenant-governor of Ontario, has been invited. We can imagine only one happening which would put an end to that ceremony, and that would be the outbreak of a war involving Canada. Perhaps the meeting would then be turned into a recruiting-meeting. We don't think there will be any war.

REFORMERS IN YOUTH

Last week The Era told of Viscount Greenwood's roundabout association with Newmarket. After he had received his honorary degree from Sir William Mulock at the University of Toronto two weeks ago, Viscount Greenwood spoke, telling among other things how he and Prime Minister Mackenzie King had as students advocated abolition of the senate and the house of lords. He added that he had since changed his mind about the house of lords, and hinted that Mr. King had changed his mind about the senate.

About War

Viscount Greenwood also said: "If there is a war, it will be a war between democracy and dictatorship, between your freedom and the restriction or prohibition of every mental and physical liberty you now enjoy." It is the same story of 1914-18, a story which was not borne out by the calm looking back which followed the war.

The Common Round

By Isabel Inglis Colville

VICARIOUS ADVENTURE

I suppose there isn't one of us who in his or her secret heart doesn't long for adventuresome variation from the commonplace. Some of us find a partial satisfaction in this craving in reading books of travel, adventure or mystery, but the longing persists to SEE some of that whereof we have dreamed and read.

I think this is part of the lure of the C. N. E., as it calls to us year after year, for when we enter its portals we start on a "round the world cruise."

"I wish I owned the Exhibition" breathed a small voice close to me, as I watched a fiendish contraption, which bid fair to dislocate the necks of its unhappy passengers.

"Why?" her companion wanted to know.

"Because," said the small one, "I could go on EVERY one of these machines EVERY day!"

And I presume you could multiply her by some hundred thousand other small people who were satisfying THEIR love of adventure.

It happened on Saturday afternoon that the only place we could find to park our car was at the very end of the Midway, so, perforce, I walked through most of it, a thing I had never done before.

In all my years of attending the great fair, and the first thing that came into my head was:

"There'll be racing and chasing from morning till night. And round-about turning to left and to right. And it's come then. Maidens and men. To the fair, in the pride Of the morning."

"For pity's sake, let me hold the tail of your coat or something," said I to my better half, for no one looked where they were going—neither did I, for that matter—and I felt that if I once lost sight of this familiar landmark, I was lost.

"There's something about your own heart," observed my better half, leading me up in front of a very indifferent looking lady, whose person was adorned with a long, fat and also indifferent looking snake.

"As long as it's around her neck and not mine, I like to look at it," I agreed; these reptiles having always had a fearful fascination for me.

After having had our fill of snakes, I begged that we go and see something peaceful, so, leaving behind us Eve's tempter, we journeyed to the Holy City.

The pictures of various Bible scenes were very fine, but there were two things I would love to have had more chance to study. These were a replica of the painting of the "Last Supper" and "The Crucifixion," done in mother of pearl. Every detail was perfect and their exquisite, shimmering. We saw this and that, till I felt transience was something to paste in memory's scrap book.

On the way out, we bought a nut—I wish I could recollect the name—and my purse and handkerchief box, where it came to rest eventually, are filled with the "perfume of the east," and we were told that the scent is everlasting, as if I'd been on every whirligig and had lost a pound in each.

"Let's go and see if we can find the Pine Orchard school project work," said I, to the man of the family.

Just then a big drop of rain splashed on my nose, and deciding that "discretion is the better part of valor," we fled through the horses' boudoirs, and finally found the building which housed the school exhibits.

"Oh, to be a child again," I sighed, as doll's houses, villages, castles, snow scenes, maps, drawings, sewing, carving, weaving and what not, met our astonished gaze.

"Quite wonderful, some of this," said friend husband, as we journeyed through this land of make-believe.

"Here it is," I exclaimed, as "Sani Milk Farm" greeted our eyes, and we gazed at the perfect presentation of a dairy farm and all its outbuildings, the cows feeding on the grass, the silo, all the accompaniments of the well-equipped dairy farm.

"We'd better get our seats for the grandstand," said "A," as we left farms and houses behind us.

"Get them quickly then," I moaned, and then lead me to my dinner, for if I don't sit down soon, you'll have to carry me." So, while "A" got the tickets, I grasped a pillar, near which I was standing and I stood on one foot and I stood on the other foot and wished I could be suspended in mid air and leave my feet below, for a change.

"What did you wear high heels for?" demanded my husband. "Women do crazy things."

"Well, your feet don't LOOK very wonderful," I retorted, as I glanced at his once white shoes, now adorned with a fine embossed design of exhibition mud.

"Maybe they don't look much, but they feel fine," said he with smug satisfaction.

"Well, anyway, here's the restaurant and comfortable seats and something to stay the inner man," I ejaculated with deep feeling.

And as I looked round I saw that all the women looked as I felt—as if their feet hurt, but rest does a lot and we were soon as good as new. Next week "Grandstand."

Next Sunday morning the Ant does he like Canada?" asked the Nuthatch.

"He likes Canada very much, except for the queer climate," Merry said, "and he enjoyed being near so many of his cousins, the other Heavens, in the marsh. There are a very few Green Heavens in that district, too, you know. But he wouldn't tell me if he had nested there or not, or whether he ever would in the future. He said that if it got around that he had nested in a certain district, there would probably be people out looking for his nest or perhaps trying to shoot him, and that it was much safer to keep things like that to himself."

"That was a marvellous experience," sighed Mrs. Nuthatch. "I wish I had been with you."

"Perhaps you would have been if you had kept that appointment with me last week," Merry couldn't resist saying. "We left on our trip the next day, and might easily have asked you to come with us if we had seen you."

POLICE COURT SON CHARGED WITH ARSON

Bail was set at $5,000 for Arthur Sanders, Jr., Jackson's Point, charged with arson in connection with the burning of the Lakeside House at Jackson's Point last Thursday evening, by Magistrate R. H. Forsyth in police court here on Tuesday.

At the end of the afternoon court session bail had not been raised, so Sanders was taken to the Don Jail, from which he will be released as soon as bail is raised.

Sanders, who was arrested by County Constables Wm. Martin and Alex. McCallum at Jackson's Point on Monday afternoon, will face the charge of arson at the court here next Tuesday.

Sanders' father and uncle are joint owners of the building burned. The arrest was made after an investigation of the fire by county constables and the fire marshal's department.

After defence counsel, B. O'Brien, elected trial by a higher court, the two charges of manslaughter and criminal negligence laid against Frederick Arthur Smith, Beaverton, were adjourned one week. Bail was renewed at $3,000.

The charges were laid after John Peter Taylor was killed near Sutton while running across the road with an ice-cream cone. "There was a very lengthy inquest held to inquire into the death of the boy and I suggest that the evidence given at that time, if sufficient, be used for a committal," stated N. L. Mathews, K. C., crown attorney. Defence counsel agreed to this suggestion.

The charges against Smith were then adjourned one week to allow the magistrate time to read those portions of evidence given at the inquest that would be properly admissible at a criminal trial.

Five charges of having liquor in an illegal place were changed to consuming and fines of $10 and costs of $8 or ten days, were imposed on George Jones, East York, Arthur Beddington, A. E. Armstrong, Albert Graham, and Ernest Ryder, all of Toronto. Beddington and Armstrong were represented by Hugh Plaxton, M. L. A.

"How do you know that it isn't water in the bottle?" questioned the magistrate.

"Because of the seal on the top of the bottle and because of the label on it," answered the crown attorney. "When it has the government seal on it there can be no doubt as to it being liquor."

The question was raised after defence counsel, Mr. Plaxton, questioned the crown as to whether or not it was liquor in the bottle.

All five charges were laid by County Constable Aubrey Fleury, who found the men drinking in cars at Musselman's Lake. The liquor in each case was ordered confiscated by the magistrate. Charged with attempting to pass and driving without an operator's license, Joseph Gold, Toronto, was fined $5 and costs on the first charge, and $10 and costs on the second charge. He was given one week to pay.

"The Gold car turned out to pass another car and crowded me right over to the guard-rail," stated Provincial Constable A. O. Ferguson. "When I stopped the car and asked the driver for his operator's license he didn't have one."

Stanley Gilbert, Stouffville, was fined $10 and costs, or ten days, for driving without an operator's license.

"I stopped the car driven by Gilbert and he had no operator's license," stated Constable Fleury. "I was told that the examiner at Markham refused to give him a license for his car and also refused to let him drive the car home, as it was not in a fit condition."

"Still he drove his car," said the crown.

"How's a fellow going to get his groceries if he hasn't a car?" questioned Mr. Gilbert.

Mr. Gilbert asked for a reduction of his fine. This couldn't be given, the magistrate said. Then he asked for time to pay it, which was granted.

The accused kept interrupting the court, and was ordered out. Then he sent in the money for his fine with one of the constables.

Hubert McCullough, Jackson's Point, charged with theft, adjourned one week so that the complainant, Walter Gould, can be subpoenaed to be at court.

POLICE COURT

CRASHED INTO PARKED AUTO

On a reckless driving charge Clifford G. Moore, Toronto, was found guilty and fined $25 and costs of $13.50, or ten days. Moore was represented by Reeve F. G. Gardiner, Forest Hill, in Newmarket police court on Tuesday.

"My car was involved in an accident one mile north of Eagle St. at 1.30 a.m. on Aug. 28," testified Maxwell Murrell. "I turned my car around in Proctor's lane after letting Bill Proctor out. Then my car, facing south on Yonge St., stalled. I saw the Moore car coming north and it was straddling the white line."

"When it got about 20 rods from my car it swerved over and then struck my car. After the impact Moore claimed that I had only one headlight, but at Aurora both lights were on and also the tail-light. The Moore car struck the left front side of my car."

"Moore smelled of liquor but he could walk all right. Moore's car went sideways after the impact, then struck the fence. The damage to my car was about $150. One of the headlights was out after the accident."

"You are sure you were on your own side within the white line?" questioned defence counsel.

"Yes."

"What light was out after the accident?"

A passenger in the Murrell car, Jack Greig, testified that their car was not moving at the time of the impact. Greig estimated the speed of the Moore car at 50 or 55 m. p. h.

"How far was your car from the edge of the pavement, two or three feet?" asked defence counsel.

"Yes."

"Is there a hedge near the lane?"

"I don't know," answered Greig.

Constable A. O. Ferguson stated that he found the Moore car straddling the fence north of the Murrell car. Both cars had been damaged by the impact but neither had applied its brakes, the constable said. Moore admitted to him having a couple of cocktails before he left the city, the constable said. The skid marks of the Moore car were 184 feet long.

"Had the Murrell car been on the white line?" questioned defence counsel.

"Yes," answered the constable.

Moore testified that he was back about 200 yards when he first saw the car with one light. Moore said he was straddling the white line and assumed the Murrell car was on its own side.

"What hindered you from going over to the shoulder of the road to avoid the impact?" questioned the crown attorney.

"I was somewhat bewildered," answered Moore.

"This is a very narrow type of highway for such heavy traffic," stated defence counsel.

"I am very much impressed by your client's honesty and he has given a very candid expression in the matter," stated the magistrate.

Also convicted on a reckless driving charge J. S. Ciglem, Meaford, was fined $10 and costs of $6.50, or ten days. Defence counsel was Carl Gould, Toronto.

Constable Ferguson stated that he followed Ciglem's car from Richmond Hill and that at times his speed was 60 m. p. h. and that he turned out of the line twice and interfered with the heavy traffic going south on Sunday evening.

Ciglem said that he just followed the other cars ahead, which had turned out to pass a slow car.

"You had quite a night of it," stated the crown. "You nearly ran over Constable Jackson at Thornhill and he phoned your license number ahead to Constable Ferguson."

"I never saw Constable Jackson at Thornhill," stated Mr. Ciglem.

"When there is such a steady stream of traffic on Sunday nights I think this was a case of negligence and I will register a conviction," stated Magistrate Forsyth.

KESWICK

Keswick People Attend Ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. George Hamilton and family were present at a most interesting ceremony on Sept. 4, when they attended the unveiling at the Anglican church, Whitby, of a memorial window to honor John Hamar Greenwood and Charlotte Churchill Hubbard, parents of that most distinguished Canadian, Viscount Hamar Greenwood, who with his charming wife and son and daughter, was present for the ceremony which was conducted by His Grace, Archbishop Owens of Toronto.

Mrs. Hamilton and Viscount Greenwood, Ontario born, but who has been for several years one of England's leading statesmen, are first cousins. Mrs. Hamilton's father was Charles Hubbard, brother of the viscount's mother.

There was a delightful gathering after the service when friends and relatives met again in many instances after several years of separation.

The congregation of the United church was pleased to welcome back on Sunday to his pulpit, Rev. C. E. Fockler, who had been absent for several weeks on holidays. Rev. Mr. Fockler gave a most interesting talk at the morning service, bringing much worthwhile information about China, which in turn he had received from an address given recently by Dr. Robert McLure, who is head of the International Red Cross in China, and who has been in England and more recently in Toronto.

Mrs. Link sang a very delightful solo. Rev. Mr. Fockler's evening sermon was "Does it pay to be a Christian?"

Mission band meets at 4.15 p.m. on Friday. Readers are asked to kindly remember that the Mission Band will again sell the church calendars, and to wait for one of the society to call.

The C. G. I. T. will meet at Mrs. Fisher's on Friday evening at 7.30.

Announcement is made that the annual Sunday-school promotion and rally Sunday will be held on Sept. 25.

The annual training school for leaders will be held for the next three weeks at Aurora United church. Rev. C. E. Fockler will be pleased to give any further details.

Indian Fair Is Well Attended

Adverse weather conditions failed to deter the large crowd attending the annual agricultural fair on Georgina Island Indian Reserve Wednesday and Thursday of last week. E. J. Sexsmith, agricultural representative of the department of Indian Affairs, officially opened the show.

The sports events were in the charge of the local Indian agent, O. J. Silver, assisted by the reserve school teacher and Lorenzo Big Canoe. Races of every kind were included on the program but a tug-of-war on horseback, in which the team of Harve McCue and James York defeated

Amos Charles and Stewart McCue in both starts, provided the most amusement for the spectators.

Two groups of Indian residents engaged in a tug-of-war contest in which the team composed of Samuel York, Ben and Lorenzo Big Canoe, James Porte, George McCue, Steve Ashquabe, John Porte and Jim York emerged victorious after a very closely contested struggle.

In the livestock competition Lorenzo Big Canoe and Edward Charles were first with each having ten first prizes to his credit; George McCue, their nearest rival, carried away four first awards.

In the cooking and ladies' work Mrs. Ephraim McCue was in a class by herself by taking no less than 24 first prizes and four second awards. Her nearest competitors were Mrs. A. Big Canoe and Mrs. Arthur Silaby, each with eleven wins. Mrs. M. Big Canoe was next with eight firsts. The baking classes gave Mrs. Albert Big Canoe four firsts and two seconds. Mrs. Ryerson Snache with three firsts and one second was ahead of the third place winner, Mrs. Ephraim McCue.

Transportation facilities included a large motor boat which carried visitors from a dock at Virginia Beach to the Island where a large automobile drove them up to the fair grounds over a mile away.

A dance was held in the community hall on Wednesday night while on Thursday night a concert and dance took place to terminate the activities.

Holt

Among the guests on Sunday at the home of Mrs. Jennie Watts were Mr. and Mrs. Allan MacInnis, Miss Esther MacInnis, Mr. and Mrs. Donald McLean, Misses Beth and Louise Burnett, Mrs. Kitchen and Master Allen Cupples, all of Toronto.

Arthur Lepard had the misfortune to lose one of his most valuable horses last week.

"Why couldn't we sponsor a bed?" asked Mr. Luck.

"That couldn't be done because there is no room at the hospital," said J. S. Law.

"It might be worked some way, but we have 43 patients there now, including babies, and our capacity is supposed to be 30," said W. H. Eves. "When necessary we generally over-crowd the hospital, although it is contrary to hospital regulations. The incubator might be the more acceptable gift."

The matter was referred to the executive. Dr. Cock also suggested that the club should follow up all its welfare work to see if it was satisfactory or if additional work was needed. This was also referred to the executive.

SCOUTS TAKE CHARGE

The boy scouts of the Christian church will take charge of the Sunday-school service on Sunday. Regular classes will be held. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

To Them That Hath Shall Be Given, Concludes Clergyman

By REV. R. R. McMATH

Monday morning, Sept. 5, I went to the post office for the mail. In glancing around I noticed the stores closed. What could be wrong? Were the merchants all taking a long nap on Monday morning? I went into the office and read a note on the wicket. "Labor Day—closed except 8-12." I decided to go home and have lunch and go for a drive.

Labor Day means a holiday and no business can be done. So thought I. After lunch we (the family) decided to go to Barrie. We had not driven up number eleven before, so we thought to see the shores of Simcoe. On turning at Main and Huron the gasoline station notice read, "Labor Day—but few labor."

The saying gripped me and being an old Trail Ranger I began to observe. Along Yonge St. the farmers were busy. Ploughing and cultivating, and cutting the corn. No holiday for them. Near Churchill we had to slow up. Even to five miles an hour. What could be wrong? Such a long line of slow traffic! Why, it was a gasoline truck so heavily loaded it travelled slowly and held up the traffic. Well, it was no holiday for the driver nor indeed was it a holiday for the attendants, for every service station was open. Suddenly we came upon a little school with the side pulled out of it. The carpenters and bricklayers were busy. True, they had all summer to repair it but next day was school opening, so they must rush it. Hence no holiday on Labor Day.

Yes, and right in Allandale were cement mixers at work repairing a gasoline station, so all trades seemed to be laboring. And ice cream in Barrie by the lake shore was most refreshing but the girl who served it had no holiday. On the return trip we decided to come by Eagle St. instead of Huron. Then by Lorne and in past the bowling green. What a crowd on the bowling green! Doctors, tailors, grocers, photographers, etc., etc. Merchants and professional folk. After all, it must have been a holiday. At last we concluded that Labor Day is a holiday for the folk who have had some vacation and not for the folk who have had no vacation. Are we right?

United Church Scene Of Ransom - Hellam Wedding

Gladioli and stocks decorated Trinity United church for the marriage on Saturday afternoon, at three-thirty, of Nellie, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hellam to Mr. William Aubrey Ransom, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Ransom, Toronto. Rev. R. R. McMATH officiated and Mr. Lloyd Harris presided at the organ.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin, the points of the sleeves falling over the hands, and a hip-length veil which fell from a headpiece of fine pleating. She carried a shower bouquet of butterfly roses and small white sweet peas on satin streamers.

Miss Rose Lee, cousin of the bride, and Miss Marjorie Lyons were the bride's attendants, the former wearing coral chiffon with trimming of matching velvet. The latter wore a baby blue mousseline de sole gown also trimmed with matching velvet. On their heads were worn small veils flecked with coin spots and

Add Teacher To P. S. Staff

As the result of the emphasis placed on art in the new course of studies, an additional teacher was engaged at a meeting of the public school board, with W. H. Eves presiding, on Monday evening.

Miss Florence Staunton has been freed to teach art in all grades. She will also do the supply work. Miss Hazel M. Sprague has been transferred from King George school to Alexander Muir school.

DEMANDS WORK KEPT IN TOWN

Deputy-Reeve Joseph Vale made strenuous objection to the fact that a Toronto man had been brought in to repair meters, although he had been urging that Wm. Young, Newmarket, be given the work, at a town council meeting Monday evening.

Councillor W. W. Osborne said that the Toronto man had been instructing the staff, with the help of C. C. Rachar, how to do this work. He had repaired 260 meters and there were 240 more to do.

"The government has a list of all our meters and tells us which ones have to be called in each year for repair," explained Mr. Osborne.

"Are the meters usually fast or slow?" asked Reeve Dr. L. W. Dales.

"Slow," Mr. Osborne said.

"We're losing money then," commented Dr. Dales.

Mr. Osborne said that the town staff would be making future repairs but that Mr. Young could help them.

Approval of the purchase of a rotating standard meter for testing electricity meters, at a cost of $205, was given by the council.

"This is something new to have the price given us before it is purchased," smilingly commented Deputy-Reeve Joseph Vale, who frequently criticizes the water and light committee's purchasing methods.

The water and light committee were authorized to discuss with Pickering College the revision of the college's electric rates.

Subtraction

The school teacher was endeavoring to drum into her small pupils the fundamentals of arithmetic.

"Now, listen," she said rather desperately, "in order to subtract, things have to be the same denomination. This is what I mean. Now, you couldn't take three apples from four bananas, or six plums from eight peaches. It must be three apples from four apples, six plums from eight plums, and so on. Do you understand now?"

The majority of the children seemed to grasp the idea. One chubby-faced youngster very near the bottom of the class, however, raised a timid hand.

"Please, teacher," he said rather timidly, "you can take three quarts of milk from two cows."

THE OSTREKOFF JEWELS

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

A GREAT NOVEL OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE

INSTALLMENT 25

An Inquisition

The premises of the Anglo-Russian Trading Company, as that organization boldly called itself, were apparently making little effort to conceal their nocturnal activities, although no gleam of light was visible except in the hall. The blinds of a long row of windows were closely drawn and the front door, with a bulky commissionaire on guard, stood open. The latter saluted Roussky and permitted his entrance and the entrance of his companion without question. They mounted in the lift to the fifth floor and Roussky led the way to an apartment at the end of the corridor. Here another commissionaire was guarding the door, but he, too, allowed the arrivals to pass in without question. They found themselves in a large office filled with a crowd of about twenty people, mostly young women typists. Every one seemed to be working at great pressure and most of them wore green shades to protect their eyes from the electric light.

Boris Roussky paused to whisper for a moment in the ear of a gray-bearded man who sat at a desk by himself. He nodded, rose at once and softly opened an inner door behind his desk. Almost immediately he reappeared. Roussky and his companion were ushered into the apartment which a brass plate engraved in three languages announced as being the directors' room.

Six men were in conference — four seated at a long table and one, apparently a secretary, standing by the side of Ivan Slakoff, who was seated in an armchair and was evidently presiding over the meeting. The latter rose, with the aid of a stick, and bowed to Anna Kastellane. He uttered no word of greeting nor did his lips part at that moment in any sort of smile. She took her place in the chair pointed out to her, which was next to Slakoff himself, and, for the first time in her life though she had often been summoned to conferences which might easily have meant disaster, when she had felt the need of measuring every word she spoke and knew that she was all the time in peril of her life, she was conscious of an unusual sensation which she recognized as fear.

There was something portentous in this silent and peaceful gathering which had been lacking in the fiercer atmosphere of those rooms guarded by soldiers with drawn bayonets, while the rifles of the executioners were spitting fire at the street outside. The curved middle window of the room, half open, a heavy screen before it blocking all outgoing light, faced cityward. The traffic in the streets had long since diminished to an almost negligible quantity. There was the occasional hooting of taxicabs, but the two most human sounds in the world—the roar of a ceaseless stream of vehicles and the continual falling of footsteps on the pavement—had died away. Below the window the roof of the buildings spread out to where the barely visible dome of St. Paul's reared itself in the far distance like a shrouded monument rising out of a misty sea. Slakoff's quiet voice called her suddenly back from her involuntary mind-wandering.

"I am glad that you have come to see us, Anna Kastellane," he said. "A few minutes' talk was necessary."

She listened to his voice and she looked into his face with a new confusion of ideas. It was the face of a visionary with sad, rather thin gray eyes, sunken cheeks, a mouth that was firm and severe but not necessarily cruel. His voice seemed to her one of the softest and most kindly she had ever heard.

"They tell me, Anna Kastellane," he went on, "that after having served those who have worked for their country's freedom since your college days, and stood with them through some of the cataclysms of the earlier revolution, you wish now to desert them; also that you have stolen, or shall I say acquired, a quantity of valuable jewels which, according to the laws of the new Russia, are the property of the state, and that you refuse to give them up. Are these things true?"

"They are true," she acknowledged, "except that I deny the theft."

He looked at her thoughtfully for several moments. Meeting his eyes, it seemed to Anna Kastellane that she saw something behind that kindness which caused her to shiver slightly when he spoke again.

"Why do you wish to desert the cause which you have adopted, Anna Kastellane?" he asked.

She steeled herself for brave words.

"Because of the hideous atrocities which have been committed in the name of freedom," she replied. "Because of this wholesale killing of innocent and guilty alike, if they happen to be monarchists or suspects."

"Because of the cruel and unrelenting way in which the men who have been placed in authority have behaved toward their prisoners. Because of the foul, ugly license which has broken out like a disease on every side. I have come even to doubt the ultimate aims of those who have become the rulers of the people."

Slakoff leaned back in his chair. His fingertips were pressed to his forehead, his eyes commanded her attention.

"Yours, alas, is the purely feminine mind, Comrade Anna," he pronounced. "You cannot realize the eternal truth that to pass forward to a new era, when one is engulfed in a disastrous epoch, there must be ugliness and sin, and a whole lot of evil passions. To build a great cathedral, the whole neighborhood around is made foul and ugly with broken roads, with masses of concrete and mortar, with the hideous tangle of scaffolding poles. Yet the time comes when the scaffolding poles disappear, when the cleansers have completed their tasks, nature has done her part, and the cathedral is built, a standing monument of beauty. Supposing the builders had stayed their hands because of the sordid ways they had been forced to tread, then there would have been no cathedral and a great inspiration would have been lost to the world."

"There are so many illustrations, Anna Kastellane, that I shall leave you to think them out for yourself, but you, in your attitude today, represent so much that is precious to the coming Russia that I must talk to you. Remember that the fairest summer morning is always the one after the thunderstorm of the night, when trees have been ripped out of their beautiful homes and killed, flowers have been destroyed in great and ruthless masses, fruit-trees have been stripped of their offerings. Yet in the morning, the black, jagged clouds have gone, the sun rises in the blue heavens and the air is sweeter for what has occurred. That is what we pray for, even now, Comrade Anna."

"France is a fine and prosperous country. The massacres of her revolution, the destroying of her woods, was as ruthless as anything that has happened amongst us. Remember, Anna, that the Russian mind is the hardest in the world to convert, the wills of the people are stubborn, their temperament a strange medley of idealism and grossness. They had become so accustomed to the existence of the aristocrats that their vicious lives seemed sacred. In your scholarly days you saw the beauty of what might come and what will come — a free people, moving on, shoulder to shoulder, to a millennium of spiritual and material happiness; a people with nothing to fear: a people whose only judge and whose only God is their conscience. You made your own beautiful dreams, Anna, without a doubt. You have the broad forehead of intelligence. I appeal to that quality now. Can you tell me that you think even the beginning of your country's freedom could ever have been accomplished by missionary work, or with that terrible barrier of a voluptuous, soul-sapping mob of people exhausting and stultifying the land of their birth, still in existence?"

Slakoff paused for a minute. Leaning back in his chair, his hands now resting upon his arms, his eyes seemed to be seeking earnestly, almost pleadingly, for her sympathy.

"You see, Comrade Anna," he went on, "it is this first generation of ignoramus whom we must labor to set free, but it is to you—the young intelligentsia of Russia—to whom we must appeal for sympathy, or after all, we may make a most colossal failure of what I still claim has been so finely begun. It is not our aim to make of Russia a nation of sensual robots. We want to make it the freest and the greatest country for the most enlightened race of human beings. Therefore, Anna Kastellane, we do not wish to lose the sympathy of such women as you."

"You could never have lost it," she found herself saying, "if the others had moved toward their ends with your spirit."

He shook his head sadly. "My dear Anna," he protested, "that was not possible. Think for a moment of my simile of the cathedral. Let me glorify myself and claim to be the architect, and those others, the builders and the diggers, the diggers and the hammers. I could not have done my part without them. The cathedral would never have become a thing of beauty without their aid."

"Perhaps you are right," she admitted. "You may be right," she said. "You are a human being. You are living too much in the spirit for me. I have lost my home, I have lost my relatives, I have lost dear friends throughout these days of horror. I can no longer soar to your heights. I am sick with the blood-guiltiness and the cruelty. I have come to believe that nothing good can ever result from anything so foully begun. I want to turn my back upon it all and know a few years of happiness."

The secretary, a deformed young man with an intelligent but almost terrifying face, and the hot eyes of an enthusiast, leaned over his master and spoke a few rapid sentences. Slakoff listened to him unmoved. Afterward he turned back to Anna.

"Remember this, Comrade Anna," he said impressively, "even the architect's fingers are sometimes stained by the building materials. You must not look upon me as one apart from the evil deeds that have been done in these days, that good may come of them. I, too, have seen them executed. I, too, have refused to reprove the guilty and have had those swept out of this life who have stood in the way of progress. On this sheet of paper, for instance, which has just been pressed into my hand, are the names of four people whose deaths are demanded. One of them is yours."

Anna gave a little start at Slakoff's quietly spoken announcement. Curiously enough, instead of looking at him she turned immediately away at the hunchback by his side. She saw in his eyes exactly what she had expected—the lust for blood—which had first revolted her. He whispered again in his master's ear. The latter motioned him gently but firmly to be silent.

"I am to die if you are able to kill me," he demanded, "because I hesitate about giving up the Ostrekoff jewels?"

"By no means," Slakoff assured her. "You are down on this list, the fatal list I suppose I should call it, for other reasons."

"May I at least know what they are?" she begged.

He looked at her sorrowfully. "You are here," he confided, "because—very likely in your first instinctive revulsion against the terrible juggernaut which your delicate fingers, together with the hard hands of millions of others, had started on its progress—you repented of your activities and you went to the other extreme. You became a traitress to the cause which you had embraced. You went to the enemy's camp, not openly, but secretly."

Real fear now for the first time seized upon Anna. She suddenly seemed to realize the ruthlessness which lay behind his simple reception of her. No wonder they had not troubled to plan an abduction or to risk leaving her in her flat with a dagger through her heart. As a traitress sentenced to death her end was certain. There was another branch which dealt with such affairs.

"Since when have you made that discovery?" she asked.

The secretary replied. He licked his dry lips and spoke in a hard clear tone.

"Anna Kastellane," he announced, "visited several times, during the course of her present year, a house in the Boulevard Nevsky, frequented by various members of our committee. She kept herself aloof, but sought to make the acquaintance of one of our members, an officer who had gathered news from Comrade Thoroff, since executed, concerning suspected people—four of whom were warned by her and two of whom escaped. Amongst others, she caused to be conveyed to the Prince and Princess Ostrekoff, dangerous enemies of the people, an intimation of the exact day on which their arrest was planned and suggestions as to a probable means of escape. Before then she was in communication with members of staff of the White Army, who are in arms against the republic, and she supplied them at times with news as to the movements of our troops and our plans concerning Warsaw. She visited General Grotzowicz."

SUTTON Fire Causes Damage To Extent Of $20,000; Arson Suspected

A $20,000 fire which destroyed two buildings and caused considerable damage to a third one of the Lakeview house, summer hotel at Jackson's Point late Thursday night, is believed to have been set by an incendiary.

Crown-attorney H. Sanders of Weston, son of the owner of the hotel, in reply to questions said, "There is not the shadow of a doubt but that the fire was of incendiary origin." The Ontario Fire Marshal is conducting a thorough investigation.

The "beach house" on the lake shore where the fire started, is separated from the other buildings by a wide pine grove, the lake shore highway, a tennis court and lawn—a distance of approximately 1,000 feet. A wind which was blowing was carrying sparks away from the other buildings and yet fire broke out in them almost simultaneously. This fact has led the Ontario Fire Marshal to suspect arson.

The fire broke out on the lake side of the beach house and spread with unbelievable celerity to the roof where workmen repairing the roof had left a quantity of dry shingles. The fire soon reached alarming proportions, but with the arrival of the Sutton fire brigade the blaze was soon brought under control.

Just as the firemen had satisfied themselves that the crisis was over, someone shouted, "Third House," as it is commonly called, "is on fire."

The 40-year-old frame building was a blazing inferno in two minutes and nothing was salvaged despite the efforts of the firemen.

Hope abandoned, the water was turned on "Middle House" in an effort to check the spread of the fire. Fire once more broke out in the "beach house" and one hose had to be carried back leaving a shortage of water. Bucket brigades, however, helped to check the spread of the fire until it was finally brought under control. Nearby cottages were in great danger from the clouds of sparks, some of the contents being removed by friends. Water was carried in pails and poured upon the roofs.

The main building of Lakeview House, which is used mainly as a dining-room, had 15 guests in the bedrooms, in the upper part of the building, at the time. They were all able to dress and escape. The buildings which are owned by the Sanders brothers, Harry and Arthur, were covered by insurance to the extent of about one half their value. Loss on the beach house was estimated at $3,000 while on the remaining buildings and grounds the loss will probably be $17,000, it is believed.

The fire contributed to the death of a summer resident, John McDole, a mail-carrier of Toronto who has been spending his holidays here for several years.

Mr. McDole dropped dead from excitement and over-exertion as he made his way back to his home after the fire was extinguished. He was one of the members of the bucket brigade, it is believed.

SHARON
Bishop Talks At Special Service

St. James' church was comfortably filled on Sunday afternoon, when former members and friends joined with the congregation to give thanks to Almighty God for both the blessings of the harvest and progress which has been made by the congregation during the past year.

The interior was very appropriately decorated with flowers, fruits and vegetables, which all spoke of the abundance of the harvest. The musical part of the service was under the direction of St. Paul's choir, Newmarket, and the special soloist was Miss Lillian Holborn of Sutton. His Lordship, Bishop A. B. Beverley, gave an impressive talk on "the blessings of giving," taking as the basis of his remarks "Remember the words of the Lord Jesus when He said it is more blessed to give than to receive."

During the service an altar desk and service book were dedicated for use of the communion table. The service was in the charge of the incumbent, Rev. A. J. Fortie, assisted by the Rev. A. J. Fortie of Newmarket. At the close of the service the choir members and visitors were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Knight, where members of St. James' W. A. served tea. Mr. W. H. Wilmot thanked the host and hostess for the use of their home, and Rev. A. J. Patstone spoke in the interest of his congregation. Thus closed a most happy harvest thanksgiving service.
